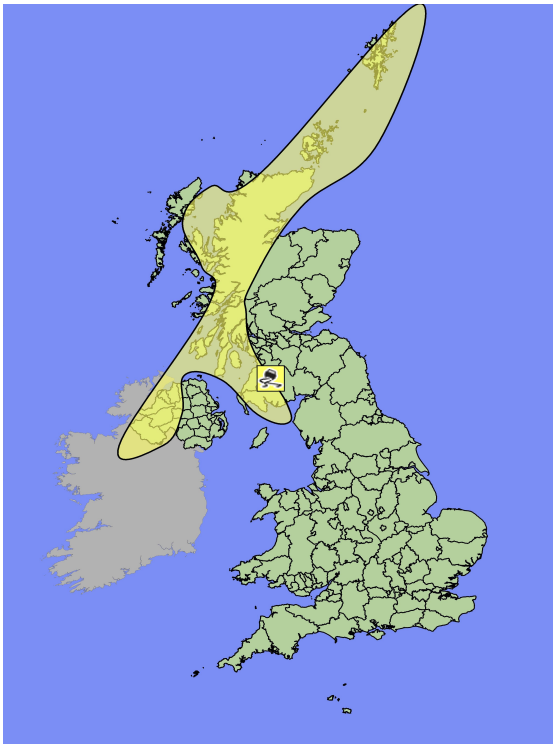
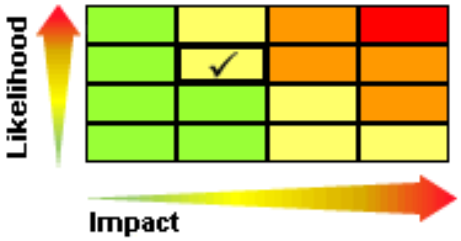
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Wintry showers this afternoon, although becoming generally lighter and less frequent, will continue to affect many western parts of Northern Ireland as well as the north and west of Scotland overnight. With surfaces expected to fall below freezing in many areas any wet surfaces produced by showers will readily freeze on untreated roads and pathways.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 00:00 on Mon, 05th Mar 2012 until 10:00 on Mon, 05th Mar 2012

Across the north and west of Scotland and the west of Northern Ireland, wintry showers will continue into this evening and overnight. Combined with a frost any wet surfaces after showers will readily lead to ice forming on untreated routes. The public are advised to take extra care.
